HOLYOAKE ADDS PLEA FOR AIR RAID PAUSE

LONDON (CP)-Prime Minister Holyouke of New Zealand said today he will ask the United States to again halt bombing of North Viet Nam temporarily when he goes to Washington after the Commonwealth prime ministers conference.

Holyoake told a press conference that the U.S. did halt bombing temporarily "three or four weeks ago" and that the U.S. did so voluntarily, He said a second halt to such bombing as a means of encouraging diplomatic negotiations is "parallel with American thinking."

Holyoake said he also was sure that the U.S. would not reject the idea of having representatives of the Viet Cong participate in diplomatic negotiations. He suggested the Viet Cong could be brought in as part of the North Viet Nam dele-

The Ministers Gather

and geographic components as are found in the British Commonwealth may well be expected to have problems of matching complexity. That is the prospect as twenty-one prime ministers, presidents and deputies meet tomorrow in London for more than a week of discussions on Commonwealth affairs.

But while the agenda may arouse some hot discussions there are many precedents for this, and the conferences have always survived predictions that the Commonwealth is coming to an end.

Tanzania and Zambia.

In 1961 the Commonwealth survived the withdrawai of South Africa, whose racial policies were under heavy criticism by the prime ministers of member nations. In the following year, Britain's proposed membership of the European Common Market and the effect of this on Commonwealth trade provided searching argument.

At the forthcoming sessions, a number of continuing inter-member squabbles may reach the conference room-notably the Tanzania-Malawi over the Rann of Kutch, and Jamaica's discontent with Britain's immigration policy. Of more general interest will be a discussion of the proposed Commonwealth secretariat and its functions, particularly of suggestions that it be made the focus for an organization with parliamentary or executive powers. The latter concept is vigorously opposed by many members as unwise, unneeded and unworkable.

Another possible item is the member nations' attitude toward current United States policies; particularly in Viet Nam. Britain has supported its ally in this regard, but Washington's actions have raised strong criticism in some of the newly independent Commonwealth nations. Canada may find itself in the middle of this controversy.

But regardless of the seriousness of many of the issues, it must not be forgotten that open discussion of them can be the best method of arriving at a peaceful understanding of motives and purposes. The Prime Ministers' conferences do not seek to form joint opinions or policies on the many topics discussed. The purpose is rather to enable each member to understand the attitudes of the others and to appreciate the reasons for their actions. As a former secretary to the meetings, Lord Normanbrook, has put it: "The objective has always been to reach the highest measure of understanding, not the lowest measure of agreement."

On this basis, free-swinging discussion can do much good and, indeed, appears to be the best approach possible to the common problems of a voluntary association of members of greatly varied origins and circumstances but with a joint tradition of Commonwealth cohesion.

FROM LONDON

By MARTIN DEWEY

A Prevailing Voter Disenchantment

determines whether Britain has a government of the left or of the right appears set for another swing, All the signs are that the Labor government after not quite eight months in office, has exhausted its reserves of popular goodwill to point where it now stands to lose badly in the event of a general election. evidence,

Dewey need not look only at the 81/2 per cent Conservative swing in last month's municipal elections or at the latest Gallup Poll figures, which show the Conservatives leading by 41/4 per cent. The unmistakable message of these figures is daily being reinforced by signs of disenchantment and disgruntlement in all areas of British life.

Road to Ruin

It goes without saying that business, investment and other professional interests have never been enthusiastic about the present government. since budget day, however, they have been winning ever wider audiences with their charge that vindictive and muddlesocialists are driving the country to ruin. And now these old foes the left are happily discovering hosts of new allies among the million of lower income Britons who are bearing the brunt of the credit squeeze, higher taxes and leaping costs.

It is here, of course, that the government faces its greatest immediate danger. In Britain, especially, votes cast for ideological or party reasons can ost be tabulated in advance.

Elections are ultimately decided, not loyal Laborites or Tories, but by the knowable numbers of voters in the iddle who are swayed by conditions of the moment. There is reason to believe that significant proportions of these voters are now regretting their decision last October to give Labor a go.

Election Risks

Thus Prime Minister Wilson, who earlier refused to call an election, partly for reasons of stubborn principle, now more dangerous to call one. In act, he faces a double danger. Not only might he and his colleagues be turned out of office. An election defeat in present circumstances, with the government caught in a tailspin of bad luck and bad management, could also mean the eclipse of the Labor party for years to

This is not an exaggerated fear when it is remembered that the British voter has long demonstrated an atural pre-ference for governments of the right, Over the past 80 years or so, the Conservative and their allies have governed three years for every year of a Labor Liberal government. The pend has been swinging admittedly, but it is somewhat lopsided and it does not seem to need a great deal of encouragement linger on the right,

There is a certain irony in Labor's present predicament, for it is probably true to say that the tide has turned in spite of, rather than because of, the quality of the opposition. The Con-servatives had their 70-seat majority stripped rudely away last October because a sizable number of Britons had lost faith in their ability to run the

Listalidas

DENNIS THE MENACE

Since then, the opposition has done little or nothing to regain the confidence of the people and one is left to conclude that the unhappy British voter is ready once again to embrace the Conserva-tives, who made an awful mess of things, only because he fears the present government is making a worse mess:

Labor Boners

Already, the press has broken out in rash of post-mortem-like analyses of the Labor record, with each newspaper trotting out the now familiar list of boners. Yet the list is somehow incomplete. Because the sum of disenchant-ment seems to be greater than its part, it is hard to avoid the suspicion that the real explanation lies much deeper than individual miscalculations,

Could it be, in Tact, that the government is now beginning to suffer the consequences of a fundamental misunderstanding between itself and the British people about what the last general election meant?

Members of the government, in particular Mr. Wilson and Mr. George Brown, the economics affairs minist have been acting on the assumption that because Labor won the election, albeit with a wispy majority, the people obviously wanted to get on with the job of building a socialist Britain.

Yet, while the government is technically entitled to proceed on that incorrect one. As suggested earlier, it is quite possible that the electorate was motivated largely by negative con-siderations and wished merely to register its disapproval of the way things had been going. Certainly the size of the government majority did not indicate that the country had veered sharply to the left.

But in pressing ahead with the steel bill, in deciding to crack the socialist whip in the budget, indeed in its general approach to the country's problems, the government seems determined that the British people will be dragged along a path that may well be acceptable only to a minority of them.

This "tough line" is constantly reiterated in speeches by Mr. Wilson and Mr. Brown, both of whom are fond of saying the government will not be deterred from its chosen course by criticism or petty political considerations. But while this is obviously meant to imply that here is a government with guts, many voters appear to be concluding that here is a government that does not much care about the wishes or views of the governed.

Gaitskell Warning

The government's determination may, of course, be defensible as a matter of good socialist principle. As a matter of socialist tactics, however, Mr. Wilson and his colleagues are guilty of ignoring the sensible warning of Mr. Hugh Gaitskell, the late party leader: "Let us not forget that we can never go farther than we can persuade at least half the people

Political sympathies in north-eastern Thailand are further complicated by the presence of millions of Laotians. may well be more Laotians in this part of Thailand than in Laos itself, and many have been subject to pressure from the munist Pathet Lao.

Perhaps the most serious form of potential subversion in Thailand, however, is Chinese infiltration through capitalism, and it lies right in the heart of Bangkok. For the overseas Chinese in Thailand's capital dominate business and banking, and significant numbers of them are secret Communist operatives.

Several have been forced to work for Peking because their relatives back in mainland China are threatened. Others are Chinese chauvinists who believe that the Communist regime in Peking has made China great. Few are real Comeven though they serve Communist ends.

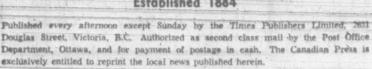

How many Chinese in Thailand are open to Chinese Communist pressure is possible to estimate. But with so m of Thailand's economy in Chinese hands, it can be safely assumed that much of Thailand is already vulnerable to Peking.

But a compromise solution to the paradox of a republic continuing as a member of a group having a Queen as its head was achieved, largely through the aid of Canada's Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Thus a population of more than 400,000,000 was kept within the Commonwealth. The formula of republican recognition of the Crown as a symbol of the Commonwealth, rather than affirmation of allegiance, has been successfully used subsequently in the cases of Pakistan, Ghana, Cyprus, Kenya,

A Startling Rise In Damage

Safety Council has released comparative accident, injury, death and property toll statistics for the first quarter of this year and 1964.

The figures support the insurance companies' argument for increased premiums in the near future. "All factors considered," says the council's report, "fatal accidents, traffic deaths and traffic injuries

THE CANADIAN HIGHWAY increase of 17.5 per cent in property damage. No explanation is given for this increase, except that the total number of accidents also rose 15 per cent. Conceivably part of the increase could be attributed to higher costs of repairs or the destruction of higher priced cars.

British Columbia compiled a record that elicits little pride. The fatal accidents for the first quarter numbered 72, against 63 during the opening three months of 1964, Traffic deaths rose to 77 from 72 in the respective periods. lessen foreign ownership of Canadian industry, apparently, was able to forestall the sale of the last major Canadian drug company to American interests.

Mr. Gordon admitted in the Commons last week that he had known for some time of the impending sale of the Charles E. Frosst Co. of Montreal to Merck and Co. of New York. but the most he was able to-do was attempt to persuade the Frosst family not to sell out. This was to no avail, partly no doubt because the Merck offer of $17.5 millions was considered to be extremely generous and also because the Frosst family is in a position where heavy succession duties threaten their holdings when some of the older members die.

It might be argued that this is a typical case where Mr. Gordon's proposed Canada Development Corporation might have stepped in and bought the country's only big nativeowned drug company and saved the industry from a situation where the top 10 companies are now foreign-

The situation is not quite that simple, however, and it is a good purchaser?

The Merck offer of $17.5 millions for the Frosst business is a price about 24.5 times the current earnings of the company. The usual price for firms in the drug industry is about 16 to 18 times earnings, according to investment experts, which means that the American firm is willing to gamble heavily that it will make the purchase pay off by increasing the Frosst earnings.

Would the CDC be justified in taking that kind of a gamble with the taxpayers' money? Would it run the risk of being criticized for paying a high price simply to keep the company Canadian? And what would happen to the reputation of the CDC if it did make a gamble like this and did not win?

Most Canadians would probably deplore the fact that there is now not one Canadian-owned major drug manufacturing firm. They would probably agree that "something" should have been done about the situation. But would they have been willing to put up the same kind of gambling money as the American

The Change In the Tory Party

Something fundamental happened last week to John Diefenbaker, the Conservative caucus, and to this Parliament but none of us can more than guess on the events or

It is clear that the acceptance of the subof the procedural reforms by the whole House ends what was always a dubious Liberal hope that they might be defeated in the chamber or have the excuse of an opposition filibuster as justification for an el

It is not so clear how the Conservatives first meandered into a posture of fillbustering the reforms and then faded away behind their leader's ingenious smoke screen about tele-vising parliament.

The usual interpretation is that Mr. Diefenbaker lost the support at long last of his Western loyalists, that he had to give up the fight because there were few speakers in his party left who would carry on the battle. were few speakers This view seems accurate. It was natural that the Conservatives like the rest of us in opposition, should be worried about drastic pos-sibilities under the new rules, particularly a government with a big majority were * * * better debating talent and more persistence than the whole Tory group. Once past John Diefenbaker, the Conservative presentations get rather dreary, especially since several outstanding MPs like Gerald Balwin and Gordon Fairweather are not on their leader's wavelength and several of those with panache and acidity like Erik Nielsen and Eldon Wooliams are not day-in, day-out performers.

The resistance to the time limitation on debates, i.e. to the so-called guillotine, grew haphazardly and probably without any grand design, although this may have been within the intention of Mr. Diesenbaker.

The Liberals had not helped their own proposals by their clumsy threats that an election was wanted. The reforms were to the red flag to taunt the Tory bull.

It is impossible to know what genius or combination of them in the Liberal power group thought up this threat. It was dragged into public view weeks before the appearance of the proposals by Blair Fraser, the Macleans writer who is an "alter ego" to a number of cabinet ministers, including the PM and Mr.

Such ham-handedness is Cassius Clay stuff and a laughable contradiction to the "new" politics of candor and straightforwardness which Mr. Pearson prates about at party

The PM fouled up the situation further when he took Mr. Diefenbaker's first bait on the idea of the permanent speaker. Each tried to out-diddle the other, speaker MacNaughton versus ex-speaker Michener, in a tit-for tat contest full of insincerity.

If this seems strong comment one should recall that neither man was willing to produce and stand behind a possible method of selection and a workable continuity of a permanent speaker. The floor of the House should not be the place for this kind of a game, involving the reputation and often the contrary opinions about the reputation of the men named. MacNaughton, Michener, and Lamoureux, and the other re-sponsible person, ex-speaker Lambert, who was insulted indirectly because the possibility of his elevation to the permanent speakership was ignored by the two leaders.

In any case, the Conservatives had slowly worked themselves into a corner. They denied intention of a filibuster but the weakening in the calibre of their arguments as more and more of their backbenchers made repetitious speeches gave the debate that appear-

Mr. Diefenbaker broke ground and saved face by suggesting in the question period that the guillotine proposal go to a committee. He was vague on the question of the length of time it should be in the committee. When it de-veloped within a few hours that his party accepted the Government dictum that the de-bate must be over by Friday, the device of having the details on the guillotine reviewed by an informal committee meeting for a mere days, could not conceal that something had given way in Conservative solidarity.

By Elizabeth Forbes

Somehow I have the feeling that you and I and a great many others have failed dismally, as far as the proposed children's inter-every thinking person in the community.

Since then, indifference has superseded en thusiasm, and a few internationally-minded

The Social Cost of Health

GENEVA-Fresh thinking on medical services is emerging from developing countries of world. The problems are much more down-to-earth than entroversies in the western world, such as the status of family doctors in Britain or the future of ['medicare' in Canada.

A scientific study on health planning has been made at Caracas, Venezuela, with the help of the World Health Organization. The study has shown that in developing countries public administrators, starting almost from scratch, found their efforts would come to nothing if they were not linked closely with economic and social development.

For this reason they shopping" and acquired new planning methods from neigh-boring disciplines: from ecoes and from business administration-and even from military science, which has been planning lif not exactly for health) for 2,000 years or

Out of this came the "manyphase" concept whereby im-provements are attempted in as many sectors of human life as resources permit. This is in contrast with the traditional approach in more advanced countries of attacking the weakest link, i.e., ill-health,

The study recognizes that

By M. S. WILDE minds trained in biological sciences alone will find it hard to come to terms with some concepts. For example, doc-tors who "have made the Hippocratic Oath part of their per sonal code of ethics will no find it easy to accept that pre-venting the premature death of one person involves allowing one or more other people to die prematurely."

Lowest Cost

The study is devoted to the search for procedures that will minimize the social cost of preventing a single death. compares the principles central planning as applied to economics and health, and says that in health one also meets the problem of choice of technique, target priorities, equitable distribution And since there are not enough resources to control all forms of disease and illhealth to the degree techni-cally possible, there has to be an order of priorities.

It also means, of course that the more resources are will to correct it. And one devoted to research for future must know how to work as a devoted to research for future able for obtaining health tothat people whose lives could be saved now must learning fast.

The spirit in which the fu-ture of health services should be approached is defined in the study as follows:

". . . Planning is an atti-tude rather than a method characterized by the ability to place one activity in the context of all the national activities, to keep the goals clearly in mind, and to arrange them objectively in order of precedence . . . must have an objective appre-ciation of the efficiency of the means. One must be able to recognize error and have the

With Political Reform Quebec Can Play Its Part

Minister of Forestry

It is no secret that I believe strongly in Canada, in Quebec, in Con-federation, and in the need for national unity. I am convinced that the full potential of our great country can only be real-ized if French - speaking Canadians and Englishspeaking Canadians work together in harmony, as equal partners in the fullest sense in all spherespolitical, economic and and cultural.

Any other course, whether it be in the dissolution of Confederation, or the artificial preservation of some uneasy, unequal and unrealistic Confederation, where dis-crimination breeds disloyalty, is to me unthinkable and intolerable. Either of these courses would mean the waste of unparalleled resources and of an unparalleled opportunity.

If we are to achieve this goal, we need a strong French Canada and a strong English Canada combining to make a greater Canada. Througha greater Canada. Innough-out the history of our coun-try since 1867, English Can-ada has generally been strong; but French Canada has often been weak.

A Resurgence

Since 1960 we have seen end taken part in an awakening, a resurgence, a strength ening in all areas of French-Canadian life. Our Quebec society is now vital, dynamic, progressive; we are strong and growing stronger. We are fi-nally preparing to take our fong-awaited place as full partners in Confederation with our English-speaking countryequal partners with equal duties, equal privileges, equal rights and equal responsibilities.

Most English-speaking Canadians welcome this comingof-age of French Canadaeven if they are a bit concerned by some of its outward nanifestations and more do so as we continue to demstrate that a strong Quebec means a strong partner, and strong partners mean a stronger and greater Canada.

If national unity and a greater Canada are to be re-alities instead of political catchwords, one essential area where Quebec's new strength and dynamism must be manifest is in our relations with English-speaking Canada. The natural and traditional forum for conducting these relations is the Parliament in Ottawa—the seat of our fed-eral government, where the spokesmen and representaives of both partners in Confederation must meet together to decide the destinies of our common country.

Both Partners

But Parliament, the cabinet and the whole federal government cannot function prop-erly as the machinery of the tion is their chief raison d'etre -unless both partners are fully represented and active in their operations

English Canada has gener ally fulfilled the obligation to send to Ottawa represen tives who are true spokesmen for their electors, and real leaders of their people. French Canada unfortunately has not always done so.

French Canadians can never come equal partners in Confederation unless we are able to deal with the representa tives of English Canada on the basis of equality. we must send to Ottawa men who are recognized as thentic representatives of the new Quebec, the Quebec of reform and ability and progress. Only then will we be able to take full part in the political life of Canada, sume the highest responsibilities in the federal government House of Commons and the party caucuses, and be equal partners in fact rather than in theory.

Crucial Function

The function of federal politicians from Quebec is crucial to the achievement of a namic national unity based on mutual comprehension and confidence, rather than on mere traditions and laws. Not must our representatives in Ottawa seek to interpret to the rest of Canada the needs and aspirations of Quebec, but they must also attempt to make Quebecers fully aware of the importance to all Cana-dians of certain national goals and objectives-worthy goals the future of every Canadian regardless of province or lan-guage. They must interpret federal policies to Quebecers, and explain their importance in helping Quebec to achieve her own goals and objectives What we must do is reform politics and politicians in Que-

The unremitting demands of Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve for immediate reform of the federal Liberal Party in Quebec have caused consternation in party circles both in-Quebeo and Ottawa, Mr. Sauve believes reorganized federal parties, able to attract candidates who are genuine spokesmen for modern Quebec, are the best hope for national unity. These excerpts from a speech given by Mr. Sauve to the Montreal Labor Council recently outline

bec. It is perfectly natural that since 1960, interest among Quebecers has centred on provincial politics and on provincial politicians. Our success in the vital task of reawakening interest in federal affairs depends largely on the success of our political parties in attracting as candidates authentic spokesmen for the spirit of the quiet revolution.

What do our federal parties have to do in order to attract candidates of this calibre? The first requirement is that they must have a program and policles that reflect and are in sympathy with the new Quebec, policies with which such men can identify themselv In the second place, our federal parties must become en-tirely and thoroughly democratic in their structure and organization. The kind of men that we must try to attract to federal politics will be very reluctant to associate themselves with any party that is not completely democratic.

Before 1955 in Quebec, no political party had democratic ridings associations. There were only party organizers named by the central committee. The Quebec Liberal Party was the first to form such associations, starting in 1955, and also a provincial federation composed of democratically chosen representatives from each riding association. But the old system of organizers was kept alive at the same time for federal elec-

End to Machines

This system must change The machine age in Quebec federal politics must be brought to an end. The so called party machine, which controls the organization of elections, the collection and distribution of party funds, the official secretariats and of-fices of the party, and in many cases the nomination of candidates, must be brought under the effective control of a democratic provincial fed-eration and its riding associations. This applies to all par-ties, not only to the Liberal Party. If we do not carry out these reforms, we have little hope of persuading first-class men to enter federal politics and the cause of Quebec and of national unity will suffer accordingly.

In this northern part of the British Isles the Sabbath is a hallowed day, unlike other parts of the country which the Highlanders regard as almost heathen. They were aghast at the idea that ferry boats loaded with cars should bring hordes of day trippers on the Sabbath Day. Sunday, June 6, however, the state-owned British Railways sent one of their ferries to Skye and with the aid of the police forced a landing. Men, praying, tried to form a human barrier. Police islanders, including ministers of religion fought on the quayside. There were 14 ar-

But the fears of those who think that the Hebridean Sunday is doomed are premature. Skye, in fact, is only the soft shell of sabbatarianism; the hard heart of resistance lies further out in the remoter islands of Lewis, Barra, Ulsta, and Uist. Here on the Lord's Day peace is total. Solitude reigns suppreme

More Unified

These outer isles are much more unified in their sabatarian strictness, Free Churchmen (members of the Free Presbyterian Church which led the Skye opposition) predominate, and while their Skye brethren might scrimmage for their principles, it is immediately evident to anyone who has lived among them that these re-moter islanders would die for them.

In many townships cows are not milked on Sunday, letter boxes are draped in black sacking and food for Sunday is prepared on the Saturday

Once, out walking by the Lines of churchgoers, in black, walk slowly to and from the kirk three times in the day. There is no other movement. The singing of psalms is by precentor - the choir-leader, who intones the pitch for the worshippers to catch and or-chestrate in wild harmony. Organs, "instruments of pleasare seldom heard. Congregations are usually segregated. Sermons may last for an hour-and-a-quarter, But hypocrisy (or human nature) apart, my memories of the Hebridean Sabbath are not of inertia and gloom. They are of the singing in church, an ecstatic animal sound which in Europe is rivalled only in the Basque country. And of the deep peace which invests everywhere these burnished moors, where one acan walk and think and smell -a virginous quality-as perhaps nowhere else in the Bri-

Hardy People

The outer islanders, whose livelihood still comes in fair measure from the weaving of Harris Tweed, are renowned for their hardiness. No gov-ernment has managed to cure their vice of distilling quantities of energizing moonshine known locally as "stag's breath." One suspects that it will take more than the might of British Railways and its ferry-boats to break down the virtue of their Sabbath Un-

One such, the minister of the Free Rirk at Stornoway, has already won for them in his non-violent way a battle against Sunday Thanks to him the boat for the mainland which used to leave Stornoway on Sunday half an hour before midnight, now does not sail until half an hour after mid-

The victory is quoted to visitors with almost dictatorial significance. Shortly after the amended service began (the islanders relate) the minister himself had to cross to the mainland. ### Arthur Mayse

Among our Canadian pioneers is one whom history inclines to forget, even though he was its day-to-day recorder. This is the printer, who usually entered on the scene with his wooden press about the time the firstcomers were establishing settle ments somewhat more ambitious than wilderness trading posts.

600 posters, and proclamations, Toronto Public Library has reproduced enough to fill a dollar booklet. While this publication is intended primarily for the student of typography, anyone interested in Canadiana will find it a fascinating record. Ontario's first printing press, we learn from chief librarian H. C. Campbell's preface, was set up at Niagara by Louis Roy, a French-Canaof 22 who came out from Quebec.

Roy set to work early in 1793, turning out to order what Mr. Campbell believes may well be the first printing in Ontario.

The young emigre from Lower Canada is represented by two broadsheets, one a government notice, the other a proclamation. Both of these -printed in the Caslon Old Face type which was the pioneer printer's standby—are set up like book pages.

This was the fashion of the times; one not materially altered until the introduction of what the trade calls "bold face" and "fat face" type sig-nalled a typographical breakthrough in the 19th century.

Louis Roy ran off the two specimen broadsheets in 1793. The notice announced an executive council resolution which dealt with the securing of Ontario land titles. The oclamation, issued on be-olf of England's George Third by Lieutenant-Governor John Graves Simcoe, post-poned the second session of Upper Canada's first legis-

It hinted of "certain arduous and urgent affairs."
Though still two years distant, the American Revolution was already casting its shadow. We can wonder if king's printer Roy pondered the future as he set his a's which to the modern eye look so much like f's.

By 1823, the wars were over, and the printer's field had broadened enormously.

The so-called display types hadn't yet reached Upper Canada in quantity, but in the notice of terms offered by a girls' school, printer Andrew Heron was experi-menting in boldface.

Mrs. and the Miss Rad-cliffe's young ladies studied English grammar, geography with the use of globes, history, composition, and plain and fancy needlework. This for £6 per quarter; for a further 30 shillings, they could expand their knowledge with writing, ciphering and

The years go by, the type styles available to Canada's inkstained printers multiply. Ontario, after 1827, makes her own paper. The iron printing press is introduced in '30's. Before that decade over, the new province lasts 38 presses, and the broadsheet assumes the heavily-emphasized character demanded by the increasingly fiery politics of a young nation

"No Taxation for Humbug!" "Farmers, Beware!" "Hurrah for Reform!"

Thus runs the second-coming type inked for broadsheets of thirties and forties.

By 1893, when the York Pioneer and Historical Society announced a jubilee excursion in French Clarendon wooden ty p ef a ve, the eye-catching broadsheet had settled into a form from which it has departed only by degree.

The specimens offered by Mr. Campbell and the Toronto Library experts who worked with him are, of course, originals. But in England, where according to the Observer magazine, broadsheet collect-ing has reached fad proportions, copies of Magna Carta now vie for popularity with reproductions of lurid Jesse James reward posters.

Instead of creating a revital-crisis by October, when seasonal pressures on the pound make do with policies that have a second-hand look.

sonal pressures on the pound are greatest.

The Socialists claim they have brought Britain's trade deficit down this year to half the 1964 average, when the Conservatives were ruling. But they also confess the national performance still is not nearly good enough. With consumer price inflation, a fall-sing production index and the pound on the slide, tough new economic squeeze action is in the cards. This is unlikely to im prove Wilson's standing with the public.

the grapes are grown,

you would ordinarily need all these paints, primers, sealers and solvents.

Now you need only one paint-and one coat!

Here's why:

Monamel Outside Latex Is the all-in-one paint that makes more fun and less work out of painting your house. Goes on in one coat - no primer needed on previously painted surfaces. No solroily rags to mess around with. No waiting hours for the paint to dry. It's quick and it's easy. Monamel Outside Latex House Paint goes on stucco, concrete, metal, and asbestos just as easily as on wood. It saves you the cost of separate paints and primers.

Monamel won't blister or peel, it sheds water yet allows moisture-vapor to escape into the outer air. It lasts up to 50% longer than old-fashioned paints - a great saving in home maintenance

It dries in 20-30 minutes. You can paint a second coat (if needed) without moving the ladder back

You can paint on damp, muggy days -or just after a rainfall. And you can clean up the tools in water just as easily as washing your hands.

Monamel's wide range of colors have such purity they will give your house a cleanness and beauty you would hardly believe possible.

FAMED MILERS INVITED TO STATUE UNVEILING

VANCOUVER (CP)-The Province says the world's first sub-four-minute milers, Roger Bannister and John Landy, have been invited to Van-couver in July 1966 for the unveiling of a statue to their famous mile duel here in the 1954 British Empire Games.

The unveiling would take place in conjunction with a proposed track and field meet that would attract athletes from all corners of the world on their way to the 1966 British Empire Games in

The paper says the Bannister-Landy statue fund already has $7,000 in private donations, with another $5,000 needed to complete the project.

B.C. Fruit Market Board Plans Shakeup

KELOWNA (CP) - A major ahakeup is looming in the mar-keting of British Columbia fruit, W. O. June, president of B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd., announced

Mr. June, speaking for the directors of the organizationthe co-operative marketing agen-cy for more than 3,000 interior growers—said changes are being made on recommendations from a consulting company.

One of the changes was accept Ing the resignation of R. P. (Tiny) Walrod, 54, general manager of Tree Fruits since 1955.

'In view of company reorgani zation and increased marketing responsibilities of the general manager, this board has re-quested and accepted Mr, Wal-rod's resignation," Mr. June

SURVEY MADE

The B.C. Fruit Growers Asconvention a survey of the industry should be made.

"The survey confirmed we have an efficiently-administered organization, but a number of steps will be taken to ensure growers the best possible future returns for their efforts," said Mr. June.

Other survey recommendations adopted by BCTF included working more closely with wholesalers and retailers to increase fruit sales, using modern ate policy and performance, and taking greater advantage of pro-vincial and federal government of destructive pesticides is threatening the North American bird population, says Dr. Thomas R. Howell of Los Angeles. Dr. Howell, president of the Cooper Ornithological Society now meeting here, said in an interview Tuesday one of the society's major objectives is rigorous regulation of pesticides.

The society is also concentrating on the preservation of the California Condor, the largest bird in North America with an average wingspread of 11 feet.

There are now about 40 Condors left, all living in Callfornia, he said.

If your beneficiary dies first, what will happen to your life insurance benefits?

When the unexpected happens, as it sometimes does, it's important to know what steps to take. That's why the competent advice of your Manufacturers Life representative is so valuable. Here are some of the practical points he'll cover.

 Unless you originally named an alternative or contingent beneficiary, the money from your policy, would be payable to your estate. This may tie up the money and subject it to creditors claims and unnecessary estate costs. In the end, it might not even go to the person you would have chosen unless your will is up to date.

2. If young children were also originally named as beneficiaries, and they are still under age, another problem arises. Unless you make special provision, the policy proceeds at your death would have to be paid into court and held until they reach their majority.

But don't wait until something like this happens. Call your Manufacturers Life representative to-day. He will review your beneficiary arrangements—and suggest changes if they are necessary. He is experienced in matters of this kind, and he offers you the kind of counsel you can rely on.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Does 'Roughing It' Give You Cold Feet?

By PENNY SAVER

The Saver family is going to pull up stakes this weekend and take off for the wide-open spaces of up-Island on a camping trip. Much as I love the outdoors and nature and all that, I adore comfort much more. One thing I particularly don't like while camping is waking up in the middle of the night chilled all over because my feet are cold. (My feet always seem to be cold, but it's much worse on a camping trip.)
Now, I have found something which warms the cockles of my heart as well as my feet when I think about it.

It is a new type of hot-water bag, which, when simmered in a pot of hot water, will retain heat in its centre, made of specially formulated fibres, and radiates the warmth for hours.

Selling for 89 cents, this little bag can also be frozen to turn selling for so cents, this little bag can also be frozen to turn any kind of a food container into a refrigerator. For home-nursing, it makes a wonderful ice-pack. This miniature refrigerator can be re-used thousands of times and the special vinyl plastic outer coat is sanforized and non-toxic.

If you're taking baby travelling, take this too, to keep baby's formula warm on the way.

Another product I noticed which would be perfect for our family while travelling is a new vacuum thermos container selling for $5.75. Available in a gallon size, this vacuum container is guaranteed to keep hot things hot and cold things cold

It is utilizing a new discovery in insulation, retaining the aperature at an even rate through even the hottest or coldest art of the day.

Job With Relative Costly for Policeman

VANCOUVER (CP)-A Vancouver police officer said Tuesday he faces dismissal for his connection with a former officer charged with possession of the $1,250,000 in mutilated money stolen here in February.

Const. John McCluskey said n an interview the charge against him is he held a job outside the police force that was connected with the real estate interests of his brotherin-law Joseph Percival.

Percival is charged in Edmonton with possession of $12,548 of mutilated money stolen from a CPR warehouse. WILL APPEAL

Const. McCluskey said he is innocent of any involvement in the robbery of the money that was destined for the mint in Ottawa for destruction.

CANADA'S NEW LABOUR CODE/Hon. Allan MacEachen, Minister of Labour, answers some questions:

"Our new Canada Labour Code has been called a 'first,' Mr. MacEachen. Would you agree?"

"Briefly, who does this new Code apply to?"

"Let's get down to specifics.

What, exactly, does it promise to those employees who are affected by it?"

"You said the new Code applies to industries under Federal jurisdiction. Would you name them?"

"Yes, and it is one of the most all-embracing.

Canada has a right to be proud of it. It sets higher standards than have been set for any other country I know. Other countries are taking note of the way the Canadian Parliament is ensuring that more workers share in this country's growth."

"It applies to industries which fall under Federal jurisdiction—and may well prove to be a guide for other industries.

The Government itself, which is a large employer in its own right, will take the lead by applying the Code's standards to its own federal employees."

"As we said, it sets minimum standards—and I stress that these are minimum, because, of course, a lot of workers already enjoy higher standards than the Code sets.

First, it sets a standard 8 hour day and a 40 hour week, with overtime limited to 8 hours a week, and paid for at time-and-a-half.

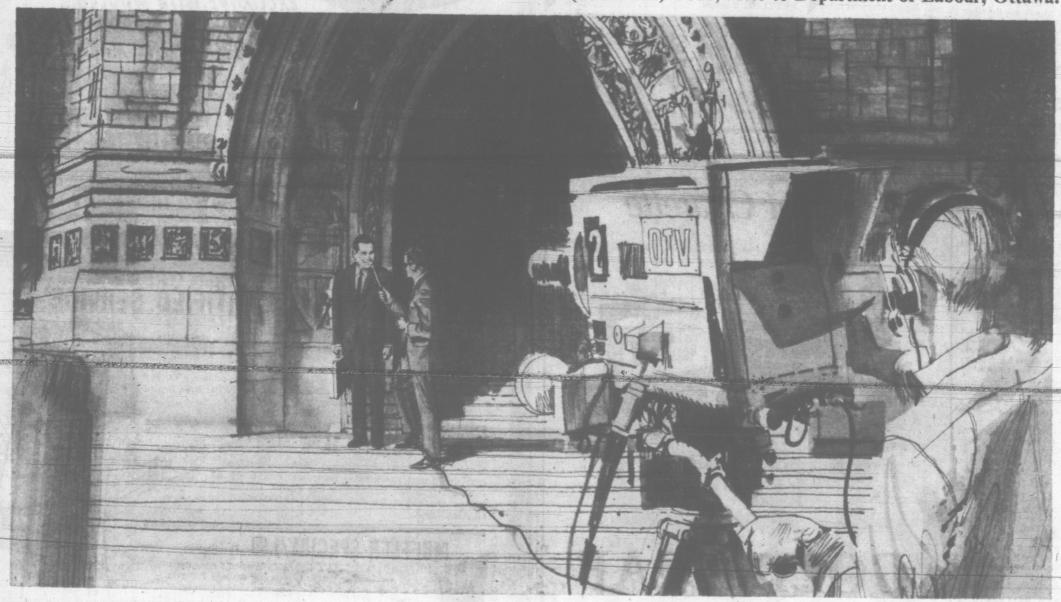

Second, it sets the minimum wage rate for all men and women over 17 years of age at $1.25 an hour.

Next, it provides for two weeks annual vacation with pay, after one year's service; or 4% of wages as vacation pay for those with from 30 days to a year's service.

Finally, it stipulates that each employee shall get eight statutory holidays with pay a year—or get a full day off in lieu of the holiday."

"The Code covers interprovincial or international rail and highway transport, primary fishing where the fishermen work for wages, air transport, radio and TV, shipping, banks, uranium mining, grain elevators, flour and feed mills and warehousing, seed cleaning mills, interprovincial or international pipelines and ferries, interprovincial or international telegraphs and telephones, most Crown corporations and one or two other smaller industries."

If you are not sure whether you are covered by the Canada Labour (Standards) Code, write to Department of Labour, Ottawa.

Viet Victory Too Costly

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator J. W. Fulbright has warned that it would be "most unwise" for the United States to expand the war in South Viet Nam despite the increased activity by the Viet Cong during the current monsoon season.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations com-clude a return to the Geneva mittee, told the Senate Tuesday accords of 1954, "not just in that "it is clear to all reason-their 'essentials' but in all their able Americans" that a comable Americans" that a complete victory in Viet Nam can be attained "only at a cost far for election in 1956 to unite both exceeding the requirements of our interests and our honor."

Why did Rambler start building big convertibles?

To prove big convertibles don't have to rattle.

Most of those big beautiful convertibles have makes doors sit tight-even they can't rattle. one thing in common: they rattle. And no wonder-they fairly bristle with bolts! Their bodies are bolted, their frames are bolted (we wouldn't be surprised if their bolts were bolted). Put cars like that over a rough country toad and just listen to those bolts complain.

It took Rambler to answer those complaints. How? We don't use bolts. Our big beautiful convertibles have a single-unit, all-welded body and frame . . . a concept pioneered and developed by Rambler. What gives? Nothing. So nothing rattles. And new Uniside construction

Although advanced construction is reason enough to look into an Ambassador convertible, there's more to it than that. This flagship for Phase II of the Rambler Revolution is larger, more luxurious than any other Rambler before it. And now there's a wider choice of engines available, from the all-new Torque Command Six to a mighty 270 h.p., 4-barrel V8. More options than ever before, too-72 of them, from disc brakes to bucket seats. And don't forget all the famous Rambler quality features: Deep-Dip Rustproofing, Ceramic Armoured Muffler, Double Safety Brakes, Reclining Seats and all the rest. There's one more reason to buy an Ambassador convertible: fun! If you want all you can handle, you want an Ambassador. Or, you can have your fun and budget too, with the sporty compact American—the lowest-priced Canadian-built convertible, (This one's rattle-free too!)

Better try both of them on for size at your Rambler dealer's—soon.

See the Rambler American, the larger Classic and the luxurious Ambassador, all at your Rambler dealer's today

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

CBC-TV has spent a great deal of money and. The series begins Monday, June 28 at 8 p.m., then time preparing five special programs for The Nature of Things series next season.

A TV team has been in the Galapagos Islands for six weeks filming exotic tropical animals from whom Charles Darwin developed his theory

The expedition was under the spices of the Charles Darwin Foundation for the Galapagos, UNESCO and the International Union for the Conservation of Nature.
They found "a great paucity of of natural selection.

birds from the species point of view-many individuals but few species and tishes of every kind in

"It's an incredibly fascinating insight into evolution, through behavior and other factors, of new species," writes expedition leader John Livingston.

Four programs the team will do for the CBC concern the islands themselves, and the fifth, an hour-long special to be prepared partly in Britain, will deal with the life and work of Charles Darwin. The programs will also be seen on the CBC's French network.

The Canadian network will telecast the Suspense Theatre drama series during the summer doldrums.

moves on July 7 to a 9:30 p.m. Wednesday time . . Taped highlights of the trooping and presentation of new colours to the Toronto-Scottish Regiment by the Queen Mother will be seen Saturday, June 26, preceding the CBC-TV coverage of the Queen's Plate.

ABC-TV's animated "Alice in Wonderland" special for the fall includes these voice castings: Sammy Davis

Jr. as the Cheshire Cat, Zsa Zsa Gabor as the White Queen, Howard Morse as the White Rabbit and Bill Dana as the White Knight using the Jone Jimenes voice. Janet Waldo will be the voice of Alice Eddie Albert's new fall situation comedy on CBS-TV, in which he plays a city lawyer who moves to the country, has been titled "Green Acres."

The New York Mets baseball team has inspired a possible television series about a football team solidly entrenched in last place . . . Jack Paar will do his final show of the season and possibly for all time without an audience. He'll introduce segments selected from his three seasons of hour-long shows featuring great moments with Jonathan Winters, Beatrice

Lillie and Richard Burton. It's due June 25. CBC-TV will present a National Film Board film, Every Second Car, June 28 showing the research now being conducted in automotive safety. The network points out that "despite warnings to drivers in North America there is an automobile accident every 26 seconds and a fatal one every 10 minutes."

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Elvis Presley's deal with United Artists for his "Frankie and Johnny" film is another of those fabulous contracts engineered by the canny Colonel Parker. For this chore, Elvis is being paid a mere $700,000 plus 50 per cent of the profits . . . Michigan's governor, George Rommey, still has eyes for the presidency, and chums say he's preparing to pitch for the Republican nomination by entering the primaries in 1968. They hint that he'd like Massachusetts' young Negro attorney-seneral as his running mate, to demonstrate his attorney-general as his running mate, to demons thinking on the subject of civil rights—and he would have to do something at least that dramatic to win even a handful of Negro votes. Mr. Romney is an able, charming and appealing man, but most non-whites won't want to know about that because he's a Mormon . . . Rita Hayworth faces surgery again, for removal of a tumor.

The world may not be ready for this, but a hitherto unpublished and still untitled manuscript of a one-act play written by Caryl Chessman before he was put to death in Sa Quentin's gas chamber in 1960, will be printed-probably under a pseudonym-next October and released to dramatic workshops throughout the country soon after that. The subject matter is as charming as his widely publicized books: incest and necrophilism . . . Greenwich Village residents who have been complaining about the beatnik element, the coffee-houses and even the outdoor art show, have anthe coffee-houses and even the outdoor art show, have another beef now that the warm weather's here. They're upset because they feel the neighborhood is "getting to look like Coney Island" with all those hot-dog and soft-drink stands springing up all over to service the tourists on budgets. (Doesn't the city have to license those purveyors? The citizens probably could do some good if they complained to Mayor Wagner) . . . Producer Marty Ramsohoff neatly snatched "The Year of the Rat" and "Castle Keep" rightfrom under the noses of 40 other bidders. Some of the offers were higher than Marty's, but the authors wanted him to have the properties because they admire his craftsmanship and film-making "chemistry."

* Penny Fuller and Anthony Roberts, who play newly weds in "Barefoot in the Park," have been continuing their romance off stage for some time, but Peggy describes their marriage plans as "definite but vague." She explains: "We feel as if we're married already, but I kind of don't want to get married on a Sunday and have to come back to work on Monday.'

James Leo Herlihy's next novel, "Midnight Cowboy," will hit the bookstalls in mid-August. It looks like a best-seller and an important movie sale; many a male star is going to want to play the role of Joe Buck . . . Part of Mrs. Danny Kaye's "Girl Talk" interview was censored, the producers say, because she told one joke they considered a bit too spicy for the videowaves . . . Small groups of Com-munists are sneaking into the Dominican Republic from Cuba to fight with the rebel forces and make the job of the U.S. and OAS troops more difficult. They're all well-armed and commando-trained.

Choreographer John Butler will get the plum assignme of creating the Harkness Ballet's new "Sebastian" to Menotti's music . . . The cast of "I Had A Ball" are unhappy "Sebastian" to over its closing, which they consider unnecessary. They feel that if it hadn't been for the back-stage bickering, the musical would have made it nicely all through the Summer . . . Anne Bancroft and Jason Robards, co-starring in "The Devils," won't appear together until the last scene.

Linda Darnell's last movie, "Black Spurs," is currently searing at the neighborhood theatres, usually supporting "Moll Flanders" . . . The Theatre Guild signed Lois Nettle-ton to co-star opposite Robert Cummings in "The Wayward Stork," slated for Broadway in November . . . St. Tropez ought to be a gas for the stronger sex this season.

Peru, which has never had any sort of gambling setup, soon will remedy that situation and make a bid for the tourist trade with a 900-room luxury hotel, complete with gambling casino, to be built shortly near Lima. The enterprise is being run by Kasaal Takoub, an Egyptian who's been living in Peru but has made a side trip to Las Vegas to study the operations there and recruit personnel . . . Walt Disney wants to sign "Seldom Seen Sioux," the canine star of Joe Levine's "Git." He thinks Seldom can become the biggest dog hamola since Rin Tin Tin.

* * * Dick Lester, who directed the Cannes Film Festival ash, "The Knack" will direct the screen version of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." If he uses the same technique he employed on "Knack" it ought to be one of the wildest movies ever made . . . When Norman Rosemont and Jerry Adler produce the musical "Drat! The Cat!" starring Joey Heatherion, they'll dress the musicians in the period of the show—the 1890s—and have them onstage throughout, instead of in the pit.

Session Starts Thursday

LONDON (CP) - Cautious hopes were in the air today that the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers, opening Thursday, could be a lever toward peace negotiations in Viet Nam.

Prime Minister Wilson was reported exploring with Com-monwealth members of a 17nation non-aligned bloc possible new approaches to a peace conference on the embattled Southeast Asian country.

The 17 countries are thos which signed a recent appeal to Britain and the Soviet Union to reconvene the 1954 Indochina Headed for Viet Nam conference to bring the Vietnamese fighting to an end. The Commonwealth members of the 17 include India, Ceylon, Ghana, Kenya, Uganda, Zambia and Cyprus.

VARIOUS VERSIONS

There are various versions of what the 21 Commonwealth leaders might do to encourage a start on negotiations.

British spokesmen indicated today it is too early to say whether the Wilson initiative is making progress.

Wilson held a lengthy meeting Tuesday night with India's Prime Minister Shastri who, on his arrival from Canada earlier in the day, issued a plea that the United States call a sub-stantial pause to its bombings of North Viet Nam.

RECEIVED LEADERS

Wilson, who is greeting all visiting premiers in advance of the conference, received Can-ada's Lester Pearson, Australia's Sir Robert Menzies and New Zealand's Keith Holyoake at 10 Downing Street today.

While this publication is intended primarily for the student of typography, anyone interested in Canadiana will find it a fascinating record.

Ontario's first printing press, we learn from chief librarian H. C. Campbell's preface, was set up at Niagara by Louis Roy, a French-Cana-dian of 22 who came out from Roy set to work early 1793, turning out to order what Mr. Campbell believes 'may well be the first printing in Ontario.

The young emigre from Lower Canada is represented by two broadsheets, one a government notice, the other a proclamation. Both of these printed in the Caslon Old Face type which was the pioneer printer's standby are set up like book pages.

This was the fashion of the times; one not materially altered until the introduction of what the trade calls "bold face" and "fat face" type sig-nalled a typographical break-through in the 19th century.

Louis Roy ran off the two specimen broadsheets in 1793. The notice announced an executive council resolution which dealt with the securing of Ontario land titles. The proclamation, issued on be-half of England's George Third by Lieutenant-Governor John Graves Simcoe, post-poned the second session of Upper Canada's first legis-

"No Taxation for Humbug!" "Hurrah for Reform!"

Thus runs the second-coming type inked for broadsheets of the thirties and forties.

By 1893, when the York Pionounced a jubilee excursion in French Clarendon wooden typeface, the eye-catching broadsheet had settled into a form from which it has departed only by degree.

The specimens offered by Mr. Campbell and the Toront Library experts who worked with him are, of course, orig-inals. But in England, where according to the O b server magazine, broadsheet collect-ing has reached fad proportions, copies of Magna Carta now vie for popularity with reproductions of lurid Jesse James reward posters.
